

The 4 week fungus gap

1 Ideas to fill the gap and keep your team members motivated

Are you growing your fungus at home, at school or with friends? Here are some ideas of fun and creative things to do while you're waiting for those mushrooms to start growing...

- You could pick a new fungus to learn about every Friday (fun-guy Friday?... sorry). There are some fascinating ones out there. Pick some to investigate from this list...
<http://www.britmycolsoc.org.uk/library/english-names>
- Organise a fungi quiz for your team e.g. 'Play that fungi music' – create a music quiz where competitors have to guess the intro, guess the year etc. Or try our quiz online
<https://www.growwilduk.com/content/fungi-quiz>
- Meet My Fungus – you could put posters up at school or invite people you know to come and meet your fungus. You can then tell them all about the growing process.
- Dress up as your fungus team job roles and take a superhero style photo... Make sure you share it with us on our Facebook group for fungus teams.
<http://www.facebook.com/groups/757106077824892>

- Have an artistic afternoon to create the best fungi inspired piece of art, poem or song. Perhaps look here for some poetic inspiration
<https://www.growwilduk.com/content/fungi-poetry>
- Make your favourite mushroom inspired recipes and organise a Fungi Come Dine with Me between team members, neighbours or friends.
- Get everyone to invent clever, witty, silly or sweet names for your fungus. You could then vote for your favourite.
- Record the progress of your fungus in photos so you can really see the mycelium and mushrooms changing and growing.

And remember...

If you are battling other teams locally you could go head-to-head in any of the above.